A NOTTING HILL GEM IN THE HEART OF W8

A much-loved and iconic spot in the heart of W8 serving modern British brasserie-style food, with a strong emphasis on fish and seafood as well as a relaxed vibe.

Kensington Place first opened its doors in 1987 and established itself as the first modern British brasserie in London.

Over the years, Kensington Place has continued from strength to strength and is now regarded as a destination restaurant for those seeking a relaxed and casual dining experience.

The bright and airy interior, redesigned by Polly Dickens, captures the fresh, vibrant and charming atmosphere of this West London stalwart.

Whether you're dining in the intimate private dining room or the main restaurant, Kensington Place in Notting Hill is an ideal venue to accommodate any event.

PRIVATE DINING

Catering for all your requirements, this versatile space can be hired for lunch or dinner as well as providing an ideal venue for an off-site meeting.

The private dining room, also known as 'The Room', has a bright and airy feel with a high vaulted ceiling, in the centre of which sits a generous skylight.

The private dining room can be adapted to suit any occasion, with flexible table arrangements providing the best layout suited to your event and number of guests.

The space is completely self-contained allowing you to enjoy an entirely private, tailor-made event.

The Room also has a flat wall suitable for a projector and we can source AV equipment on your behalf.

GROUP DINING

Kensington Place welcomes groups of up to 40 people in the main restaurant. Ideal for family celebrations, a company get together or any larger occasion, you can rely on us to provide stress-free service and fantastic food.

Positioned at the top of Kensington Church Street, a stone's throw from Notting Hill underground, the revolving door of the striking glass frontage propels customers into a bustling, energetic bar. From there they have an ideal vantage point from which to view the restaurant.

Alongside the group menus, the Head Chef can create an "on the day" bespoke menu including fresh fish sourced from the early morning catch at Billingsgate Market.
