Sustainability – Natural/Organic/Bio-dynamic - SNOB Wines

Sustainability is a banner title or even an umbrella, under which we can pigeon-hole the three categories below. This said it's hard to categorize such wines or winemakers as they are creative, artistic individuals who know no boundaries....

They make wines in roughly the same way; as purely as possible. Here's a brief guide!

Natural: Essentially means that the wine is made with a 'hands-off' approach. They are often unfiltered/slightly cloudy wines with minimal so₂ (sulphur-dioxide) additives involved. (Nat)

Organic: The rules for organic wines differ from one country to another.

Organic practice is restricted to the vineyard, ensuring no pesticides or fungicides but plenty of undergrowth, weeds and tender loving care! Organic wines do have traces of so₂. (Org)

Bio: These wines are made under the guidance of the moon and the stars; no pesticides or fungicides either but stringent laws mean that it takes over 3 years to be fully 'Demeter' Certified and requires that 9 very precise vineyard techniques (involving manure, buried horns and hanging bladders) are carried out. (Bio)

Keep an eye out for the symbols following certain wines; Org/Bio

The Sherry Triangle

Sherry is a fortified wine, produced in Andalucía, a region situated in the southwest of Spain encompassing the towns, Jerez de la Frontera, Sanlúcar de Barrameda and El Puerto de Santa María. Sherry is produced in a variety of dry styles made primarily from the Palomino grape, ranging from light versions similar to white table wines, such as Manzanilla and Fino, to darker and heavier versions that have been allowed to oxidise as they age in barrel, such as Amontillado and Oloroso. Sweet dessert wines are also made from Pedro Ximenez or Moscatel grapes.

	100ml	Bottle
Lustau Puerto Fino – El Puerto de Santa María	£5.00	£35.00
Pale yellow in colour reminiscent of yeast on the nose, dry and crisp on the palate
Lustau Manzanilla Papyrusa – Sanlúcar de Barrameda	£5.00	£35.00
Pale straw colour, hint of the sea breezes on the nose and the palate
Lustau Dry Amontillado los Arcos – Jerez	£5.00	£35.00
Amber in colour with nutty aromas on the nose, light, soft and round on the palate, with a long aftertaste
Lustau Oloroso Don Nuno – Jerez	£5.00	£35.00
Mahogany in colour with penetrating smoky aromas, reminiscent of dark chocolate and walnuts in the mouth, intense and concentrated finish, lightened by a tangy acidity
Hidalgo La Gitana Triana, Pedro Ximenez – Jerez	£9.00	£44.00
Almost black in colour, serious legs that coat the glass with a golden brown. A very traditional PX – warm wintry raisins, figs, prunes, sultanas and mince pies on the nose and an opulent palate that bursts with bitter treacle and lingers lusciously in the mouth.

Sparkling wine and Champagne

France - Loire Valley Sparkling – Méthode Traditionnelle

Both of these wines are made the natural way, so don't be alarmed by a cloudy hue, or striking notes of apples and pears. They provide a great aspect of Loire Valley wines that rarely feature on aperitif lists.

Italy

The main difference between these two Italian wines is the way that they are made; Prosecco which is made from the Glera grape and produced using the "charmat method" – where the second fermentation takes place in stainless steel while Franciacorta is made the same way as champagne, using Chardonnay and Pinot Noir with the addition of Pinot Blanc.

England

English sparkling wine possesses many of the same qualities as the terroir of the Champagne region. Not only is the cool climate very similar but the soil type too. The Champagne region is part of a long ridge of chalky limestone that extends from France across southern England.

Champagne

Sparkling wine can only be called Champagne if it is made in the Champagne region, made from the grape varieties, Pinot noir, Chardonnay and or Pinot Meunier, and fermented using the Methode Traditionnelle – a method where already barrel fermented wine are assembled into a cuvee to which sugar and yeast are added to initiate a second fermentation which takes place in the bottle. The Co2 released as the yeast consumes the sugar is where the bubbles come from.

Aromatics

Riesling, Pinot Gris, Gewürztraminer and Friends

Germany: Here's a rough guide to finding the bottle that suits your palate;

De-mystifying German Whites (They're not all sweet!);

The Germans classify their wines according to the ripeness of the grapes at harvest, here are some pointers;

Trocken is dry.

Kabinett is light, ideal for aperitifs.

QBA are generally speaking no more than off-dry.

Spätlese means late harvest, therefore they vary from dry and full flavoured through to lighter with medium sweetness.

Auslese are made from riper grapes than Spätlese, they benefit from cellaring and are quite sweet. All other levels thereafter are to be considered sweet.

176.	Riesling, St. Urbans-Hof Estate (off dry) Mosel 2012	£33.00
178.	Riesling (off dry), Dr Thanisch, Bernkastel/Kues Mosel-Saar-Ruwer 2011	£35.00
180.	Riesling, Trocken, Donnhoff Nahe 2011	£38.00
182.	Riesling, Weingut Schloss Reinhartshausen, Rheinhessen 2007	£40.00
184.	Riesling Trocken ' Le Mur ', Göttelmann Kapellenberg, Nahe 2011	£50.00
190.	Riesling Auslese, Göttelmann, Nahe 2010 500ml	£55.00
196.	Silvaner QbA, Wittmann, Rheinhessen 2012	£37.00
200.	Grauer Burgunder (Pinot Gris) ' Kabinett '(dry), Weingut Bercher, Baden 2009	£33.00

As a rule of thumb, French Riesling are dry-ish, the Pinot Gris have a pinch of sweetness and Gewurztraminer are rich and soft, but can have surprisingly dashing acidity like the Frick version. We've also included the Alpine variety of Roussette.

212.	Gewürztraminer, Rolly Gassman, Alsace 2002	£40.00
214.	Riesling ' Tradition ', Domaine Albert Mann, Alsace 2010 - Org	£38.00
216.	Riesling ' Rot Murle ', Pierre Frick, Pfaffenheim Alsace 2002 - Bio	£49.00
218.	Pinot Blanc, Domaine Mittnacht Frères, Hunawirh Alsace 2012 - Bio	£27.00

Austria “A waltz and a glass of wine, invite an encore.” Johann Strauss

The vast majority of Austrian whites are dry, whether it is Riesling or the indigenous Grüner Veltliner. In the Wachau, Smaragd - meaning emerald and referring to a green lizard that is native to Wachau represents a wine that has reached the highest level of ripeness and quality in this area.

226.	Riesling ‘ Grillenparz ’, Stadt Krems, Kremstal 2006	£44.00

The New World

Australia’s Clare Valley is regarded as one of the world’s best Riesling producing areas; Kilikanoon’s dry Riesling is a benchmark label. Felton Road, in Central Otago produces a gentle, lemon sherbet, yet mineral Riesling from the world’s most southerly vineyards!

White Burgundy

Chablis in the North to Pouilly Fuissé in the South

Chardonnay is one of the most versatile grapes in terms of how it can be made to how it can taste; racy & mineral in Chablis through to the creamy, nutty, buttery, steely examples from Puligny and Meursault. Mâcon is a pleasant in-betweenener.

Rosés

Chosen by colour rather than by grape

The Chinon is deep pink; strawberry and cherries on the palate joined by a whisper of sugar on the tip of your tongue. Bandol is a grey-pink rose, mineral with a fragrant cinnamon nose that precedes its dainty mouthfeel. Whereas the pale Côtes de Provence is a dry rose from the rolling hills above Toulon.

406.	Cabernet Franc Chinon, Domaine Couly-Dutheil, Loire Valley France 2010	£28.00

Plush, Youthful & Juicy Reds

During the summer months these wines come into their own. Best served cool, the Beaujolais Crus are an obvious selection for this category. The St Laurent, although deeper in colour and possessing obvious tannin, still manages to finish vibrantly, and how about a Freisa d'Asti, a Strawberry-laden delight!

Pinot Noir from Around the Globe

The influence of soils in wine is so great that a wine from one side of the road can be staggeringly different to the other, but on the flip side, grape varieties have specific characteristics by which they are defined; below we have a succulent Pinot by Meyer-Näkel in Germany and a tasty equivalent from Woori Yallock in Australia.

Loire, Dordogne & Garonne; Western France

Cabernet Franc is the lesser of the major Bordeaux varietals yet blossoms in the cooler Loire Valley creating reds with substance and balance. Generous with the aromas of autumn leaves, blueberries or maybe even white pepper, whilst conjuring up the idea of dining outside on a balmy summer evening. Great when served cool!

Bordeaux

No mention of grape varietal here I'm afraid, all of these wines are blends that vary from year to year. As a guide the Médoc is predominantly Cabernet Sauvignon with a good dose of Merlot whereas you'll find the opposite in the Libournais. Both areas use smaller amounts of Cabernet Franc & Petit Verdot.

Rhône Valley

The Rhône is the divide between the Mediterranean south and the continental north. Grenache and Châteauneuf go hand-in-hand as much as the Syrah painstakingly struggles on the clay and limestone soils in the north, resulting in the Cote Rôties which are arguably the purest Syrah in the world.

Southern France - From the Italian Border to the Atlantic

South West France creates Bordeaux – like earthy, brooding reds; Madiran is a perfect case in point, made using the local Tannat variety. Domaine de Montcalmès - a Grand Cru of the Languedoc, produces a powerful wine made using a blend of Syrah, Grenache and Mourvèdre and is one of the finest wines coming from the south of France.

Iberia - Sun-drenched Alicante to Picturesque Port Spain

The quality of wine outside of the notorious Rioja & Ribera regions has improved enormously over the past decade. The somewhat dismissed southeast corner produces distinguished, raunchy reds including the voluptuous Monastrell. In the North West you'll find the appealing Mencia grape that is a welcome change to the ripe southerly versions; grippy tannins accompanied by hints of mint and mocha.

Portugal

The Portuguese have persevered with their indigenous varietals as opposed to replacing them with the usual 'international' grape varieties, in doing so they've preserved their authenticity and sense of terroir and pride. These two reds are made from the Tinto Roriz, Tinta Cao and Touriga Nacional; varietals' all used to make Port.

North of Rome – the Home of Sangiovese and Nebbiolo

Sangiovese - "blood of Jove". Like throwing yourself into a bowl of basil leaves and sun-ripened tomatoes. Here we showcase wines from Ciacci Piccolomini, one of the sought-after producers of the Brunello. Their Rosso Toscana bonds well with many classic pasta dishes, or even salmon and trout.

New Challenging the Old - Big Bold & Enticing

Australia & America's image of presenting the world with over-extracted, mass produced wines is something of a miss-conception. Bordeaux alone produces a similar amount of wine to the whole of Australia. The list below includes some real pioneers such as Shafer in the small Stag's Leap sub-region of Napa as well as the chewy, fruit-forward Clos des Andes grown in the Argentine 'Pampas'!

Sticky Whites & Rich Reds

A good sweet wine, like any other wine, must be balanced. Therefore the level of acidity is imperative. A really sweet wine with great acidity doesn't appear too cloying e.g. Eiswein by Helmut Lang. Thicker sweets are usually botrytised (grapes that are so over ripe they become infected with botrytis), the technique used in Sauternes.

Three very different sweet reds here; Maury has an intriguing orange-red hue and exhibits the much sought-after Rancio flavours; oxidative oak-ageing that brings out the lingering aromatics of dried fruits, nuts & burnt orange. Olivares Dulce is a hedonistic fruit-rich Monastrell; blueberries, cherry & rhubarb.
