Savini meets Criterion

The opening of Savini at Criterion represents 150 years of Italian and English history, with Milan's most celebrated hospitality name now showcasing the finest all-day dining in one of the world's most spectacular and historic restaurants.

Dating back to 1867, Savini is Milan's most famous restaurant, where Verdi, Puccini, Callas and Sinatra all came to dine. For its first overseas location it has chosen the romantic and elegant Grade II-listed The Criterion, in the heart of London's Piccadilly Circus.

Against a backdrop of timeless opulence designed by Royal Albert Hall architect Thomas Verity, this neo-Byzantine dining room and bar, with its fabulous gold ceiling and marble columns, now presents guests with a menu of authentic Italian dishes prepared with the finest seasonal ingredients.

By day Savini at Criterion is a Grand Café that offers a sumptuous setting for ritzy breakfasts, with the scent of freshly brewed coffee and home-baked croissants filling the air, along with languid lunches and indulgent afternoon teas featuring infusions from around the world and mouth-watering cakes and pastries.

But as the sun sets, so Savini at Criterion transforms itself into the capital's most glamorous night-time destination.

The iconic long bar - where Sir Arthur Conan Doyle staged the first meeting between Sherlock Holmes and Dr Watson - is the perfect spot for an aperitif or cocktail.

With the magnificent chandeliers illuminating the silverware, the restaurant then offers an evening of fine dining, featuring signature dishes such as ossobucco di vitello con risotto alla Milanese (veal ossobucco with saffron risotto).

Open daily, Savini at Criterion offers a dining experience like no other.

"A passion for perfection always comes too late. At times, a hundred years is not enough for certain undertakings, but it always manifests itself as a passion for poetry. Here I have found such a passion for fine dining."
