Drive and meticulous perfection are key to achieving excellence, and these qualities shine through here, combined with great talent. From Vigna delle Oche, two selections are made; the first grapes to ripen make up the basic blend, whereas the late ripening ones (late October) are used to make the Riserva. This has more perfume, extract and minerality, crucial in the two-year ageing process. The wine stays on its lees for up to 2 years before bottling. One of the great Verdicchio, it has ability to age for up to 20 years, the wine has a creamy richness with note of peach and apricot, ripe mouthcoating fruit and a long finish

Lipari is the largest of the Aeolian Volcanic islands off the coast of Sicily. Massimo Lentsch and Stefania Frattolillo, two entrepreneurs from Bergamo started this project, believing in the great potential of this island to produce great wines. Using the latest technology, the winery is carbon neutral with zero impact on the environment. The vineyard on a high plateau at 350metres is planted on pumice soil with Carricante and Malvasia delle Lipari. The wine has a distinct salty minerality with floral and citrus notes; great balance and persistence

Cos

Azienda Agricola COS was founded in 1980 by Giambattista Cilia, Giusto Occhipinti and Cirino Strano, their aim being to produce natural wines that reflected the Sicilian tradition. Today it is one of the most respected wineries in Italy. The company follows the principles of biodynamic viticulture in the vineyard to keep harmony with nature and to help the wine to express the character of its soils. Made with 100% Grecanico, the grapes are macerated with the skins and aged in terracotta amphorae, which gives the wine a dusty, dry feel; on the nose it has intense aroma of dried herbs and spices; on the palate fruit of peach, orange peel and caramel; a seductive, complex wine

Sergio Mottura considered "the greatest interpreter of Grechetto in the world" by Gambero Rosso, has modernised this estate belonging to the family since 1933, choosing the porcupine as logo to signify a healthy ecosystem, as this animal present on the estate is usually only found on healthy unpolluted land. A tribute to French winemaker Louis Latour who advised him on casks and ageing of the wine, it is made with the best Grechetto grapes from the five vineyards. Rich gold in colour, it has an elegant nose of subtle vanilla flavours; with white fruits, citrus, warm butter and hazelnut on the palate, it is well-rounded, fresh and velvety, with a complex lingering finish

Masciarelli

The late Gianni Masciarelli and his wife Marina Cvetic have single-handedly raised the standard of winemaking in Abruzzo. This winery, established gradually over the last 30 years, has been their great achievement, always at the forefront of innovation and quality, with the creation of some iconic wines. Their approach has been an entrepreneurial example for winemaking in Abruzzo. This Trebbiano, sourced from the best grapes of 2 small vineyards, San Silvestri and Ripa Teatina, is aged for 22 months in barrique; it has great intensity and richness, flavours of apricot and peach, with notes of lemon and marzipan, backed up by spices, minerals and vanilla notes. With balance and depth, and a refreshing acidity, it has a long, smooth finish

Mancini

Luigi Mancini is the 5th generation of this family who has been producing wines since 1861. Set in the north of Marche, it has just the right combination of soil and microclimate to produce some fascinating Pinot Noir wines. Introduced by the French during the Napoleonic conquest, over the years it has developed its own individual character. As well as the red Luigi has created a unique white from a selection of Pinot Noir from the estate's coolest vineyards. After soft pressing the grapes the wine is aged for 12 months in small barrels. This is a medium to full bodied wine with lots of ripe fruit, notes of vanilla and wild herbs, savoury with mineral note, and a long smooth finish.

Passopisciaro

Andrea Franchetti (see Bin 342) took on a new challenge in 2000. He reclaimed abandoned terraces on Sicily's volcano. As well as reviving the old vineyards planted with Nerello Mascalese, he tried international grape varieties; 4 hectares of Chardonnay on steep terraces between 850 and 1,000 meters in the contrada of Guardiola. The drastic changes in temperature, altitude, and volcanic influences of Etna produces a wine with the crisp acidity and minerality often associated with Chablis and with the tropical aromas of Sicily. The wine is citrusy with forward fruit, a saline backbone and hints of pear and honey. The fresh acidity and lovely minerals give the wine an unmistakable Etna identity

After some years as a qualified oenologist, he established Quintodecimo in 2001, on the hill of Mirabella Erclano, in the heart of the DOCG Taurasi area, 80 km North East of Naples. He named the wine Exultet from ancient liturgical scrolls in which bees are paid tribute. The estate produces wines from indigenous grapes only, and this wine from a single Fiano vineyard is bright yellow in colour, full-bodied with aromas of tropical fruit, acacia and thyme; with short fermentation in small oak barrels, it has good ageing potential due to its richness and the integrity of the grape

The Benanti family winery, revived in 1988, owns great sites on the black volcanic ash slopes with vineyards at 500-950m above sea level. Dramatic variations in temperature between day and night create a unique microclimate. Pietramarina is a vineyard with 80 yr old pre-phylloxera carricante vines on terraces at 950m. At this altitude, the grapes ripen in the 3rd week of October (later than in Champagne), resulting in a special intriguing wine; fermented in stainless steel tanks, it is delicate, yet intense, building up on the palate with fresh mint, spring flower and minerals reminiscent of a Grand Cru Chablis; it is richly textured, complex and elegant leading to a dry, crisp finish

Az Agricola Valentini
Valentini Estate is considered to be one of the country's top dozen wine estates on a par with Gaja, Giacosa, Quintarelli, Giacomo Conterno among others. It can be traced back to an aristocratic Spanish family that moved to this area in 1600. Edoardo Valentini, started making wine in 1956 until he passed away in 2006; his approach to winemaking has always been shrouded in secrecy and mystery; what we know is that he only makes three wines from their 60 hectares, only made in good years and only a fraction of the crop is selected to make the wines the rest is sold off. Valentini's son Francesco Paolo now continues his father's legacy. The approach here is very traditional with little intervention and no chemicals and aging in large botti. The wine has a complexity not unlike that of a fine white Burgundy; notes of lemon, lightly smoky backed by flavours of apple and straw with a long, dry saline finish

Sauvignon Blanc 70% Viognier 30%	131	ORNELLAIA BIANCO IGT 13.5% vol	Toscana	2015	290.00
Tenuta dell'Ornellaia
Estate winemaker and director Axel Heinz has created a white wine deemed worthy of the Ornellaia name; it started by chance in 2006 after trying some white wine fermented just a few days previously, made from Sauvignon Blanc that had resisted grafting onto Merlot. There is a rarity factor, because only 4,000 bottles were produced (200 released in the UK). The 2013 was its first vintage. The wine is reminiscent of white Bordeaux, yet has something distinctive and uniquely Italian with its savouriness transcending the combination of its 2 grape varieties; this can only be put down to terroir. Golden in colour, it has rich mouth-coating fruit with notes fresh and dried apricot, white peach and lychee; smooth, multi-layered and elegant, backed up by a mineral vein and fresh acidity giving the wine balance and complexity

With three generations of winemaking tradition, this estate produces some of the most stylistically classic Sardinian wines. They own 50 hectares of vineyards in Jerzu one of the best wine districts in Sardinia, all planted with indigenous grape varieties. The Monica vine was probably introduced from Spain in the XI century; favoured by the Monks, who planted it around the monasteries, it is believed that this association gave it its name. This is a supple, easy to drink wine, with flavours of red cherry and currant and a touch of earthiness, it is refined round and juicy

This azienda is an artisanal project set up in 2012 by vineyard manager Gabriele Saffirio and winemaker Mario Andrion (also winemaker at Castello di Verduno). Their mission is to create high quality renderings of two forgotten Piedmontese varieties, Moscato and Freisa, doing so in a sustainable manner, preserving the soils, hills and biodiversity of the land with minimal intervention. Their six hectares of vineyards are all situated at around 500 metres altitude planted on chalky / sandy soils. The Freisa is aged for 2 months in old oak vats and then for 8 months in steel tanks. With juicy and fresh red berry flavours, it is a lovely expression of this little known grape variety

Adanti, a historic cellar of the Montefalco area was established in 1960 on the site of an old monastery; the family restructured the estate, replanting vineyards and renovating buildings and cellar. Today with 30 hectares under vine, they produce some of the most distinctive wines in Umbria. Their approach is a traditional one with long maceration and ageing in large casks. The Montefalco is a blend of Sangiovese, Sagrantino, Barbera, Merlot and Cabernet. Medium-bodied, it has dark cherry fruit with notes of leather and dried herbs, clean and fresh with a long finish

Cascina Feipu dei Massaretti
A favourite of Pope Paul III, who was known to enjoy wine among other things, Rossese is rarely seen outside Liguria; well-liked in the region, its tiny production fails to satisfy local demand. It produces fragrant, mildly fruity wine with notes of roses and wild strawberry; naturally low in tannins, it is often compared to Pinot Noir. This estate produces the grape's best expression. The wine is intense and full-flavoured, with floral notes on the nose; it displays sweet cherry and wild berry fruit on the palate, and is soft and round with fresh, balanced acidity and a long, velvety finish

Lillovè takes its name from the location of the vineyard on the Gabbas Estate in Barbagia, the heart of Sardinia, near the provincial capital of Nuoro. 46 acres of vineyards are planted on decomposed granite in the Locoe Valley, between Oliena and Orgosolo. The microclimate encourages balanced acidity and ripe grape growth. Winemaker and owner Giuseppe Gabbas favours long macerations and organic fertilizers. The wine is full-bodied with earthy aromas of tilled soil, underbrush and wild berry. On the palate it offers bright red cherry, blackberry, black pepper and grilled herb alongside polished tannins

Ruche's origins are shrouded in charming mystery, being either a mutation of a Burgundian grape, or from the Savoie with its name linked to the chapel of San Rocco around which the grape was planted. Although never widely planted, it has always had its loyal fans and owes its revival to Don Giacomo Cauda a local priest who championed the grape to obtain its DOC for Castagnole Monferrato. The wine has a distinctive and unique bouquet, pronounced nose of red berry with nuances of rose petal, fresh and medium bodied with lovely balance and length

Contini Bonacossi, an aristocrat family has been at Capezzana since they moved from Spain in the early 1900's. The estate took shape in 1945 at the helm of Count Bonacossi, when the Carmignano subzone was grouped with Chianti Montalbano, a lesser appellation. Count Hugo succeeded in obtaining the DOC for Carmignano in 1975, a precedent having been set by Cosimo di Medici in 1716, who had conceded production from this area under the name of Carmignano, the first example of a controlled appellation. In the last ten years, the new generation has taken the wines to further heights, with stricter selection of the grapes. A blend of Sangiovese and Cabernet Sauvignon, (as in Cosimo di Medici concession), the wine is deep red, with ripe black cherry and currant aromas, notes of leather, chewy, soft tannins and a clean, refined finish

There is great drive behind this micro estate (3.5h under vine), owned by the Bolli family. Vineyards are planted at very high density with research into the right clone of Sangiovese for this area. An organic approach is practised, using only natural fertilisers; This is a stunning 100% Sangiovese, only produced in exceptional years, sourced from a steep, terraced vineyard with 85 year old vines. Vinification follows a traditional approach with long skin fermentation and ageing in large "botti". The wine has great structure and is full-bodied with notes of tobacco, leather, liquorice and mint. Its clean mouthfilling fruit is supported by supple, rounded tannins; multilayered and complex with a refined, long finish

Soldera

Franco Soldera left the comfort of a secure career in Milan, to pursue his dream of making great Brunellos. In 1972, at a time when there were only 15 Brunello producers, he bought 8 hectares of a run-down property near the church of Santa Restituta, rebuilding the whole vineyard. A meticulous perfectionist, he likes to think of the vine in human terms, providing what it needs to fulfil its potential. Using a biodynamic approach, he disinfects and seals each pruning cut, as if it were a wound. A fanatical ecologist, he encourages insects to prosper in the vineyard, leaving natural grass to grow in between the vines. With an uncompromising, traditional approach in the cellar, he has long maceration and ages his wines in large botti, for up to 6 years. His wines evolve gently, showing differing complex aromas at different stages of their development, becoming more ethereal, multi-layered and powerful year after year

When Angelo Gaja (See Bin No 447) acquired this estate, after a long negotiation process with two elderly brothers and a sister, the joke in Bolgheri was that we would soon see the release of "Sassi-Gaja", a reference to Sassicaia, (the wine that put Bolgheri on the map, and started a rush of winemakers to the area.) Gaja who is not without a sense of humour, named the property, Ca'Marcanda – a dialect term for the owners' continuous haggling and changing the conditions of sale. 	Marchese Incisa della Rocchetta Bolgheri
	Marchese Incisa della Rocchetta brought cuttings of Cabernet Sauvignon from Chateau Lafite-Rothschild. The resulting wine became a success and is now acknowledged to be one of the best wines in Italy. The wine has structure and intensity of flavour of the Bordeaux, if only with softer tannins when young. Intense colour, rich concentrated fruit and seductive character, rich plummy flavours with soft supple tannin and a spicy blackcurrant and vanilla aftertaste

		Tenuta dell'Ornellaia was started by Ludovico Antinori, the brother of Piero (Solaia and Tignanello) and nephew to Incisa della Rocchetta (Sassicaia). Now part of the Frescobaldi group, it is run under the guidance of Bordeaux-trained winemaker Alex Heinz. Masseto happened almost by chance, as it was noted that Merlot from the clay outcrop was of such high quality, that it was decided to vinify and bottle it separately. The first vintage was 1986 and it has since become one of the most sought-after wines for wine lovers around the world. The wine is spicy, full-bodied and rich, incredibly concentrated with plenty of suppleness and gorgeously pure sweet fruit

Responsible for saving the Schioppettino grape from extinction, they have a non-interventionist approach both in the vineyards and the cellar taking great care not to use any chemicals which are damaging for the environment. The wine is now in its perfect drinking window, juicy dense and refined with violet floral notes; red cherry and blueberry fruit flavours coating the palate, its saline mineral notes and fresh acidity give the wine balance, ending with a vibrant floral finish	2009	93.50
373	SCHIOPPETTINO Friuli Colli Orientali DOC 13.5% vol Ronco del Gnemiz Owned and managed by Serena Palazzolo and her sons, Ronco del Gnemiz has been one of Friuli Venezia-Giulia's leading wineries for more than a decade. The Palazzolo family bought the estate back in the 1960's, and Serena took over from her father in the early nineties when she returned home after college graduation. Her management of the winery has enabled it to reach new heights in terms of uncompromising quality, natural viticulture and most notably, aging potential. She also produces two barrels of Schioppettino which really shows the great potential of this little known grape variety. The wine bursts with flavours of violet and dark berry fruit, savoury with round firm tannins and a fresh finish	2015	98.50

Now, a highly respected winemaker in Friuli, he crafts some of the most exciting white wines in Italy. Rosso della Centa evolved from 2 years experimentation in his oldest Merlot vineyard. Its first release was in 1985, and is only bottled in great years. This wine is a work in progress; only a few bunches are left on the vine in order to produce perfectly ripe grapes. Only 1,260 bottles of the 2006 were produced. Deceptively medium-bodied, the wine slowly reveals its many elements, gaining richness in the glass. Layered with blackberry fruit, notes of coffee, liquorice and plum jam, its firm sweet tannins lead to a long, velvety finish	2006	165.00

This is a family-run estate with 7.5 hectares of vineyard in the Grola subzone, source of the finest Valpolicella and Recioto. Winemaking here has never been driven by fashion, but by quality and expressiveness of the terroir. This Valpolicella is of a traditional style, aged for 2 years in large oak casks, where the richness of its elements evolve, mellowing the tannins, acidity and rich fruit. It is an extraordinary wine in the same style as Quintarelli with subtle fruit and tones of cherry stone, liquorice and tar; velvety with marked minerality and a long almond finish

She is now making some of the most refined wine in Veneto. Vineyards are certified organic and planted with indigenous grape varieties at high density following biodynamic principles. The wine is rich and full-bodied with a purity of flavour of cherrystone, aniseed and sweet spices. Refined and elegant

His wine consultant, the talented Celestino Gaspare, worked for 20 years with Giuseppe Quintarelli (See Bin No 385) and also advises Romano dal Forno (See Bin No 386). Stefano's approach is both traditional and modern: he restricts yield in the vineyard where the grapes acquire depth and minerality, and uses the traditional ripasso method as well as the modern extraction and maceration. In 1967, the wine was awarded DOC status. Carema is one of the rarest DOC wines in Italy. With only 17 hectares of vineyards divided between 78 part-time farmers, it is a cottage industry at risk of extinction. Only two wineries make this wine: the cooperative and Ferrando the founding father. Carema has the most extreme terroir of all the northern Nebbiolos, making it amazingly subtle and complex with delicate red fruit, sweet aromas and minerality. To raise standards no single vineyard was bottled in this vintage, but instead the best barrels of the best sites were blended. The style is a very traditional one with maceration of up to 4 weeks and aging for up to 40 months in old barrels. The wine, layered with sweet fruit has notes of raspberry, tobacco and dried herbs. This 60 hectare estate is owned by the Stupino brothers and sisters – Anna, Giulio, Italo e Piera. The history of the company began when their father, Giacomo, a land surveyor, bought land in the best location in Barbaresco. In 1964 they purchased the castle, its spacious cellars, more farmsteads in Santo Stefano and Marcorino, plus more land from the previous owner, Count Guido Riccardi Candiani. Today Italo with passion and determination has built up the reputation of the estate. Santo Stefano is one of the great vineyards of Barbaresco (some refer to it as “magical” - the source of B. Giacosa’s fabled Santo Stefano) Fully south-facing, steep and richly chalky, this vineyard is prime wine real estate in a region where location truly matters. This is a big Barbaresco, ripe dark fruit, spicy and intense with notes of violets, roasted coffee, tobacco and leather; finely grained tannins, minerals and acidity give extraordinary balance leading to a complex finish

	Giacosa's wines are all about purity, intensity and elegance. Admired and hugely respected by his peers in Langhe, he is acclaimed by the wine critics as one of the great winemakers in the world. His uncompromising approach means that he will not bottle his Barolo and Barbaresco cuvees when the wines don't meet his exacting standards. One of the great traditionalists, his skill lies in the meticulous selection of the finest grapes, and skillful non-interventionist approach in the cellar. The Asili vineyard is quintessentially Barbaresco and produces wines with the greatest finesse in the appellation. This is a very elegant and delicately structured wine with an expansive bouquet of redcurrant and wild berry intermingled with aromatic notes of rose petal and delicate sweet citrus fruit. The palate reveals lovely depth of pure red fruit with darker layers coming to the fore as the wine builds in breadth and complexity

Angelo Gaja, the greatest personality in the Italian wine industry today, trained in enology at Alba University, and spent time in the late 60's/early 70's in France and California to broaden his knowledge. In 1970 he took over running the estate and embarked on research and experimentation to improve the quality of the nebbiolo grape. From then on Barbaresco was never the same again in every sense. His energy and drive have inspired a whole generation of winemakers, not only in Piedmont but in the whole of Italy. Every vintage achieves greater perfection and his top crus compare with the great wines of the world. Sori San Lorenzo is a 3.25 hectare vineyard whose wines are firm and austere. Nebbiolo 100%	483	BAROLO Falletto DOCG 14.0% vol Bruno Giacosa Giacosa originally bought grapes from selected vineyards and producers including Falletto. Knowing the high quality of wine it produced, he bought the Falletto vineyard in Serralunga in 1980. Giacosa's in-depth knowledge of each great vineyard, how the Nebbiolo grape performed in the different sites and the varying traditions of the Langhe winemakers has no equal. His wines are unique, defying labels such as modern or traditional and are the result of all this knowledge, wisdom and experience. Falletto impresses for its silky personality and layers of understated complexity. The stony chalky minerals come through on the nose; sweet rose, tar and liquorice are all woven together	2009	220.00

Nebbiolo 100%	488	BAROLO Vigna Rionda RISERVA DOCG 14.0% vol Massolino Founded in 1896 with a total of 20 hectares of vineyard, today it is still run by the same family. The estate took a new direction in 1990 when brothers Renato and Giovanni, both enologists, applied modern agronomic and winemaking techniques without compromising the house ethos. Vigna Rionda is a 2.5 hectare vineyard and the estate's most celebrated cru. Thanks to its exposure and soil, it produces wines with great structure and ageing potential. 2001 vintage was exceptional, one of the finest wines in the whole of Barolo, achieving high scores from all wine critics. The wine has a penetrating rose petal aroma, with notes of cocoa and liquorice, rich fruit of dark cherry and raspberry jam, great balance at a high level of concentration; tannins are polished but firm, with fresh acidity that lifts the palate. The finish is powerful, intense and complex	2001	220.00
Nebbiolo 100%	490	BAROLO Lazzarito DOCG 14.5% vol Vietti Patriarch Mario Vietti made his first Vietti wines in 1919, selling most of the production in Italy. His most significant achievement was to transform the family farm into a grape-growing and wine-producing business. In 1952, Alfredo Currado (Luciana Vietti's husband) owning some of the finest sites in the area started bottling single vineyard Barolos, one of the first to do so. Lazzarito has historically been recognised as a great site in Serralunga and Vietti owns the finest two-hectare parcel. Rich, ample and structured, the 2011 is both opulent and savoury in style. Iron, plums, dark red cherry, smoke, liquorice and tobacco meld together in a remarkably harmonious Serralunga Barolo	2011	240.00
Nebbiolo 100%	492	BAROLO Cascina Francia DOCG 15.0% vol Giacomo Conterno Roberto Conterno took over the estate from his late father Giovanni in 2004, after working under his guidance since 1988. His talent has been in perfecting his father's traditional approach with long maceration of the grapes and little interference in the cellar, letting nature take its course. Under his stewardship, the wines have gained in intensity and precision and are now the ultimate cult wines. In this warm vintage, the wine shows great finesse and complex aromatics; fleshy with a core of sweet fruit, spicy with notes of violet and rose petal, savoury minerals and silky tannins supporting its exquisite layers of fruit	2011	280.00

		Giuseppe Rinaldi
		Giuseppe Rinaldi owns two of the finest vineyards in Barolo. One of the most respected Barolo producers, he is becoming an iconic figure in Piedmont. Unaffected by trends, he is a traditional winemaker, who has followed in his father's footsteps, using the technique of long maceration, which is dictated by the vintage, and ageing in large oak casks to preserve the Nebbiolo grape flavour. The Brunate has a floral nose, is rich and full-bodied, with notes of violet, leather and spice. Well-polished, chewy tannins give way to complex layers of persistent fruit

		Bruno Giacosa
		Le Rocche del Falletto is a subplot of the Falletto vineyard and has been bottled separately since 1997. This is one of the great Barolo vineyards, a delimited area of clay and calcerous soils which contains the cru's oldest vines. Giacosa was well aware of this when he bought the property. This towering Barolo is loaded with tons of rich, fruit; a host of black cherry, smoke, liquorice and tobacco notes envelop the palate. The wine remains powerful, dense and muscular with superb length; a great effort that will drink beautifully for several decades

		Angelo Gaja
		All Gaja wines have fantasy names, which makes them all the more special. 'Conteisa' is Piedmontese for 'quarrel' or 'dispute', named such in memory of the Langhe dispute between the bordering villages of Barolo and La Morra, who both fervently fought over this grand cru vineyard called Cerequio. Conteisa 2008 boasts the most striking inner sweetness and perfume imaginable. Juicy red cherries, spices, hard candy and mint caress the palate in this extraordinary, breathtaking wine. One of the great all-time vintages for this wine

		(See Bin No 510) Brunate is the most sought after of La Morra cru; this has a fantastic richness, full bodied with a perfume of violets and freshly cut roses, notes of dark cherries, plum, liquorice and minerals. Its silky tannins are almost masked by the opulence of its fruit, which leads to a complex, refined, long finish

Nebbiolo 100%	489	BAROLO Cannubi-Ravera DOCG 14.5% vol	2007	420.00
Giuseppe Rinaldi
A trained vet he took over when his father passed away in 1990 and continued to make wines like his father and grand father did "if it works so well why would you want to change it." Giuseppe Rinaldi's wines used to be the best kept secret in Barolo; this is no longer the case as word is now out, these are some of the most compelling and sought after wines in Alba. This is a blend of two vineyards Cannubi San Lorenzo and Ravera. The wine is bright, deep red, crushed blackberry, cassis and violet on the nose, plus notes of game and bitter chocolate; a compelling purity, sweetness and depth of fruit, emerges from the glass with sweet dark cherry, crushed flowers, and notes of tobacco and leather. A seductive, multilayered wine with great depth and beautifully balanced

Voerzio
Roberto Voerzio started in 1986 with 2 hectares of vineyard in La Morra, and slowly acquired more land, building a 20 hectare estate with some of the finest cru. Now a legend, he is much talked about for his controversial approach to winemaking. His philosophy is all about the vineyard where yields are some of the smallest in Langhe and no chemicals are ever used. Generally perceived as a modernist, he sees himself as a modern traditionalist; label aside he is a true craftsman who works with nature so that the vines will produce the best possible result. Roberto has been the ambassador of La Morra wines and the benchmark for its winemakers. Due to its marne-clay soil, the wines have great elegance and perfume supported by a powerful structure. The Cerequio has an intense perfume with violets and rose petals, multilayered sweet cherry, and redcurrant, silky and refined with sweet finely grained tannins. Power, elegance and finesse define Cerequio; richness, intensity and complexity define Voerzio's Cerequio

The history of Tokaji dates back to the 16thC, when wine made from Aszu (botrytised grape paste) was first recorded. It also claims to be the first historic wine controlled appellation, (in 1730 the vineyards were categorized according to soil, sun exposure botrytis potential.) By the 19thC, Tokaji had become fashionable enjoyed by popes, tsars, emperors, European aristocracy as well as writers and actors. Its decline started when production and distribution was controlled by the communist state, when vineyard classification became irrelevant and vinification was standardised. Since 1990 with the collapse of the communist regime, the fortunes of Tokaji have been revived; thanks to privatisation of wineries and foreign investment it now produces some of the greatest dessert wine in the world. From a selection of the best botrytised grapes, sourced from first growth vineyard of Nyuloso, the wine has rich apricot and orange peel flavours, honeyed sweetness, balanced and refreshing acidity

Marco de Bartoli was one of the first to recognize Marsala as a serious post prandial drink at a time when it was mainly found in restaurant kitchens. It was first imported to England in 1770 by John Woodhouse, becoming fashionable, but when it was superceded by the more popular port and sherry, the industry declined, and Marsala became a commercial drink, increasingly used in hotel and restaurant kitchens. Marco reintroduced the more traditional methods such as the Perpetuum (an ageing method similar to the Solera for Sherry), as well as sourcing the best grapes for his wines. His Marsala ranks among the great after dinner drinks more of a meditation wine rather than a dessert wine. Amber in colour, with multilayered, complex aromas of caramel, marzipan and roasted nuts and a dry, mineral long finish

The Scamperli family own 20 hectares of vineyards in 4 different districts of Valpolicella Classico. Franco is a great believer in how the terroir is expressed in the wine. La Pergola Vece is only made in exceptional vintages when the best fruit of 3 vineyards is selected; the grapes are dried for 6 months before vinification. The wine spends 12 months in barriques, 18 months in terracotta amphorae and 6 months in bottle. This is one of the best expressions of Recioto; the wine displays aromas of dried fruit, fig and deeper, darker flavours of chocolate, coffee and liquorice; sweet and savoury with mineral notes. Vigna Sere' is one of the most extraordinary dessert wines in the world. Made in the Recioto della valpolicella style, it cannot be sold as DOCG because it is atypical, but then Dal Forno is not your typical winemaker. Inspired by the late Giuseppe Quintarelli, in the quest of perfection, he has evolved his own winemaking style controlling each stage from vineyard to bottling. Only made in great vintages from the finest grapes of old vines, it is aged for 36 months in new barrique, 2 years in bottle and then released. This is an opulent super-rich wine with incredible density; masses of ripe fruit layered with flavours of orange, chocolate, roasted coffee and dark cherry, backed by silky tannins, giving the wine balance and freshness

Ch. D'Yquem is a world-famous wine. Classified a premier grand cru classe in 1855, its name has always symbolised the ultimate decadent luxury, with unlimited longevity; vintages from the 1800s can still be found on some restaurants wine lists. The property was in the Lur-Saluces family since 1785 until recently. The legend of the Chateau lives on and the wine is still made in the same traditional way. Expert pickers pick only botritised grapes with a sugar content of 22 Beaume. The wine is aged in wood cask for 3 years before being bottled. Production/hectare is between 12-14 hectolitres and very labour-intensive, whereas a Grand cru classe in Pauillac can produce 3 times as much. To drink Ch. D'Yquem is a memorable experience

	Quinta do Crasto traces its roots back to the 19 th C at the beginning of the Port trade. It was acquired in 1910 by Constantino de Almeida, a partner in the Port house of Constantino. In 1981 his grand-daughter Leonor and husband Jorge Roquette took it over and restored it to its rightful status as one of the great family estates of the Douro. It owns some of the finest vineyards (A grade) in the heart of Cima Corgo. Vineyards are on terraces on south-facing slopes up to an altitude of 600m. The Estate uses state of the art vinification technology with traditional foot-treading methods. Attractive smoky black fruit character dominates the wine's aromatic profile.
