

COLONEL
SAAB

Binny and Manbeer Choudhary along with their son Roop are an extraordinary bunch of people. The couple were posted all over India during Manbeer's (the erstwhile 'Colonel' after whom the restaurant is named) distinguished career in the Indian army. They spent considerable time in cantonments across this vast nation and as they travelled, they collected stories and antiques that turned out to be priceless works of art. They imbibed and enjoyed great Indian food in both the homes of royalty and local army messes. Eventually they became hoteliers and together created one of India's most awarded palace hotels.

I am delighted to have had the opportunity to create the menu for this unique restaurant. Colonel Saab is a delicious embodiment of the art of hosting and gracious living. It is also the repository of so many stories collected along various journeys, theirs and mine along with my own experience of food in India over the last 35 years. I have also tried to incorporate the generosity of spirit and insatiable love of good food we all share. The menu reflects regional accents and a nostalgic palette of collective memories from a contemporary view point. It is food that observes the established traditions of Indian cooking but breaks the rules a little! We go way beyond the 70s 'curry', beyond street food and into the world of real Indian flavours. I have taken certain liberties with some twists and turns which reflect my own culinary heritage. I hope you enjoy the food as much as I have enjoyed creating it.
