Cider is Wine*

L'Ortolan is all about quality: in food, in drink, and the service we give.

So when we find products that reflect that quality ethos, we feel it's right to offer these to our customers.

Hence our new cider offering where we're working with cider producers whose love and passion ends up as magic in the glass. Can cider be called wine?

Yes indeed, not only in dictionary terms, but when it's made according to EU - and globally accepted - winemaking laws from 100% juice without any concentrates (in other words, not your average cider).

At L'Ortolan we only work with cidemakers whose love and passion is every bit as single-minded as any (grape) wine producer - makers who strive for a true representation of the fruit used and, to use a winemaking term, its 'terroir'.

In other words, ciders crafted like wine, but wine made from apples with all the attributes that can be appreciated in the same way as a wine made from grapes.

Cider Is Wine Ltd. is the trade and quality mark owner of 100% juice, not-from-concentrate ciders, perries and fruit wines

The Double 'A' Sides have been created in association with hospitality professionals Sam Brotchie of Le Bab and Imie Augier Soda and Friends and are exclusively distributed by Cider Is Wine. The sparkling dubbed 'Street Food Champagne', and the still 'Fine Dining Cider' (labels attached): both are disruptive in their approach, open a different conversation and new drinking opportunities.

Two ciders crafted to start a conversation and support mental health therapy sessions in hospitality.

A collaboration between Cider Is Wine, awareness leader Wrestling Demons and cidery Little Pomona, we set out by asking the question of people from all walks of life and professions.

Orange Wine

We love this fascinating and venerable style of winemaking. Essentially white wines made as if they were reds – the grape are left in contact with the juice as it ferments, and sometimes as it matures as well, orange wine can be utterly thrilling and unique when well executed.

Ramato Wine

When Pinot Grigio grapes are crushed and the skins are allowed to spend time with the juice, a teasing, tactile texture and coppery hue results in a distinct wine style called ramato. It comes from the word 'rame' which means 'copper' in Italian.
