*** Size Matters ***

Japanese wine production still only has a brief history, starting about 140 years ago. The major varieties include the indigenous Japanese white grape Koshu and the red Muscat Bailey A.

Germany has 13 wine growing regions, 11 of which are in the southwest corner of the country while the other two are located in former East Germany. Most vineyards are situated along river banks and on hill slopes.

Germany is home to Riesling and is also a paradise for Pinot:

Riesling covers nearly 25% of German vineyards and 40% of global Riesling planting. Spätburgunder is the third largest Pinot Noir planting in the world after France and US. Grauburgunder is the second largest Pinot Gris planting in the world after Italy. Weissburgunder is the world's number one Pinot Blanc planting.
